One to one coaching

Personal language coaching is about revising your knowledge and changing your habits. Together we define your learning goals, formulate a strategy and create a plan to improve your language skills. The course is designed around your learning goals and your profession. Your preferences determine the course length, frequency and intensity. Learning on a one to one level is about getting a new perspective on your communication skills and improving your personal effectiveness.

Group courses

I develop and teach English courses to companies and organizations aimed at improving their employees' practical use of the language. Courses are designed around your company's learning objectives. A logical build-up to courses results in participants learning efficiently. The courses offered are designed to build on the students' present knowledge and language skills. Companies can choose between fullday intensive workshops or an extensive weekly courses.
